Expert Testimony

Bruneske v Devine (D. D.C. 83-0711). I served as the expert for the plaintiff in a gender case, giving deposition testimony but no court testimony, as the case settled. There was no report written. The plaintiff alleged that she was stereotyped as a traditional woman and not treated as a professional.

Hopkins v. Price Waterhouse, 618 F. Supp. 1109 (D. D.C. 1985); appeal: Price Waterhouse v. Hopkins, 825 F.2d 458 (D.C. Cir. 1987); Supreme Court review: Price Waterhouse v. Hopkins, 109 S. Ct. 1775 (1989); remand: Hopkins v. Price Waterhouse, No. 84-3040, slip op. (D. D.C. May 14, 1990). I served as an expert witness for the plaintiff in a Title VII sex discrimination suit; my testimony described the social psychological literature on categorization and stereotyping, applying current knowledge about the antecedents, indicators, and consequences of stereotyping to the facts of the particular case. Hopkins was penalized for her interpersonal style that failed to fit a stereotypic feminine image. There was no report in this case, but a group of social and organizational psychologists (E).

Borgida, K. Deaux, S. Fiske, & M. Heilman) later assisted D. Bersoff, the APA attorney on this case, who wrote the American Psychological Association amicus curiae brief to the Supreme Court. The courts at each level decided in favor of Hopkins, and my testimony was cited in each opinion.

Robinson v. Jacksonville Shipyards, Inc. (M.D. Fla. 1989; Case No. 86-927). I served as an expert witness for a very different sort of Title VII sex discrimination case. Again, the testimony outlined antecedents, indicators, and consequences of stereotyping, applying relevant social psychology literature. In this case, the plaintiff alleged that women were stereotyped as sex objects, due to a hostile and intimidating work environment that included pornography, frequent sexual joking, and incessant sexual overtures to the tiny minority of women workers. The favorable decision again cites my testimony.

Gantcher v United Airlines. (US District Court, N. District of Illinois, E. Division) I wrote a report and gave a deposition in a class action in which flight attendants alleged age and gender discrimination. The case, under a confidentiality agreement, settled favorably for the plaintiffs.

Butler et al. and Frank et al. v. The Home Depot, Inc. (US District Court, N. District of California, C 94-4335 SI & C 95-2182 SI) Case in which plaintiff class claimed sex discrimination in disproportionate numbers of men in sales force and management, disproportionate numbers of women as cashiers. I wrote a report and gave a deposition. The case, under a confidentiality agreement, settled favorably for the plaintiffs.

President's Initiative on Race, March 24, 1998, Public testimony on stereotypes, Denver, CO.

Lisa Cappetto v. Olan Mills, Inc. (Chancery Court of Hamilton County, Tennessee at Chattanooga, 96-0850). Case settled, favorably for client, under confidentiality order.

Shore v Groom Law Group, 2000, wrote rebuttal report for defense and testified in the arbitration hearing, no public record.

Rapier et al. v. Ford Motor Co. (2000). (US District Court, N. Dis. of Illinois, E. Div.) Class action sexual harassment case at two assembly plants. Settled favorably for plaintiffs.

Cremin et al. v. Merrill Lynch. (2000). Class action discrimination suit at offices across the country. Settled.

McCann et al. v Smith Barney. (2003). Class action discrimination suit at offices across the country. Arbitrated.

opportunities to testify turned down: at least 100. (Being a researcher first, I first tried to choose cases to which the social psychology literature is particularly applicable, and that seem especially egregious, intellectually interesting, and potentially useful as a legal precedent. Now, I no longer accept any cases.)
